Report on Interdisciplinary Talk

Department of English

An interdisciplinary talk on the topic "Indian Classical Literature as a Source for Reconstructing Ancient Indian History" was successfully organized by the Department of English on 17 March 2026 at 10:00 AM in Room 2.

The session was graced by Dr. Dimpy Das, Assistant Professor, Department of History, as the resource person. The event aimed to explore the rich interconnections between literature and history, highlighting how classical Indian texts serve as valuable sources for understanding the socio-cultural and political dimensions of ancient India.

The programme commenced with a brief introduction to the speaker and the theme by a faculty member of the Department of English. Dr. Das delivered an insightful and engaging lecture, emphasizing the significance of classical literary works such as epics, Puranas, and other traditional texts in reconstructing historical narratives. She elaborated on the methodological approaches employed by historians to interpret literary sources and underscored the interdisciplinary nature of such studies.

The talk was highly informative and encouraged students to think beyond conventional disciplinary boundaries. The interactive session that followed enabled students to engage with the speaker through thoughtful questions and discussions, further enriching their understanding of the subject.

The event witnessed active participation from students of different semesters, making it a fruitful academic engagement. The programme concluded with a vote of thanks, expressing gratitude to Dr. Dimpy Das for her valuable contribution and to all participants for their enthusiastic involvement.

Overall, the interdisciplinary talk was a great success and provided meaningful academic exposure to the students.
